

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Robin Agnew is a retired consultant chest physician from Liverpool. He is a member of the Liverpool Medical History Society and of both the British and International Societies for the History of Medicine. He is a retired Fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine in London and of the Royal Academy of Medicine in Dublin. His book The Life of Sir John Forbes (1787-1861) was published in 2002.

Robert Arnott is Reader in the History and Archaeology of Medicine and Director of the Centre for the History of Medicine at the University of Birmingham Medical School.

Anne Florence is a retired consultant anaesthetist, who spent most of her career at Broadgreen Hospital. Her interests include: the history of anaesthesia (especially the very early use of ether and chloroform), the establishment of medical education and the contributions of Liverpool practitioners to advances in health care. She has recently been elected as Honorary Secretary of the History of Anaesthesia Society.

Richard Hunstsman was Professor of haematology at St Thomas Hospital, London and subsequently Professor of haematology, Memorial University Medical School, Newfoundland, Canada and director of the provincial blood transfusion service. He has published articles and books primarily on haemoglobinopathies. Since retirement he has published on various topics related to Elizabeth Fry's contribution to nursing reform.

Leslie Klenerman is Emeritus Professor of Orthopaedic and Accident Surgery at the University of Liverpool and formerly consultant orthopaedic surgeon at Northwick Park Hospital and Clinical Research Centre, Harrow, Middlesex. He is editor of The Evolution of Orthopaedic Surgery, published by the Royal Society of Medicine Press in 2002.

Doreen McGiveron is a retired senior lecturer in Nursing who had worked in a variety of disciplines in the National Health Service and Special Hospital Services Authority. She completed an MA in Local History at the University of Liverpool in 2000.

Mair Pierce Moulton is Librarian at the Liverpool Medical Institution.